This morning, we changed back to the deviation tool for our final attempt to try to drill into the ledge including reaming and cleaning the ledge. In the following days, we will be busy filtering the hole to have it as clean as possible for future use.

During the day, we started to disassemble the logging table which includes packing all the logging equipment, dismantling the long V-shaped aluminium profiles, the FED and the Swiss circular saw. The wooden table remains in the drill tent. The Vissmann workshop was cleared/cleaned and the 3D printer packed (sadly, no cookie cutters will be printed anymore...).

After dinner, we finally took a group picture of the second (half-) season team – and the last one in the field of the BEOI project.
